NOFA-NH E-Newsletter: November 2022

View as Webpage

Dear Friend of NOFA-NH,

November certainly rings in the season of giving. You can support our work moving into 2023 by making a year end donation to NOFA-NH today. Your donation, big or small, supports our vital education programs, food access initiatives, advocacy work, and so much more!

November is also Native American Heritage Month, and NOFA-NH would like to once again extend our gratitude to the first stewards of this land we call New Hampshire today. Thank you to the Pennacook, Abenaki, and Wabanaki people, past and present, who have cared for their ancestral land, or N'dakinna, and its waterways through the generations. You can learn more about the Indigenous peoples of this land, their work, and how to support them at:

Dive deeper and learn more about the diverse experiences of Native Americans and Alaska Natives with this collection of documentaries from PBS, including Alter-NATIVE: Kitchen, a mini docuseries that explores how three Native chefs connect their culinary craft to their culture and history.

This month invites us to toast the harvest, eat delicious, local comfort food, and connect with loved ones near and far. We hope that you will join us for our upcoming offerings that celebrate food, farmers, and community, including our final Share the Bounty

Fundraiser of 2022, 2023 Winter Conference, Winter Book Study, Food & Climate Panel, and Bulk Order Program.

Thanksgiving is, of course, all about the food and if you are looking to Live Free & Eat Local for your turkey day dinner, you can find local food here with the NH Food Alliance's local guide to Thanksgiving.

This Thanksgiving, NOFA-NH is grateful for this vibrant community of organic farmers, gardeners, eaters and advocates who share our vision and work so hard to create meaningful change. Thank you for being committed to building a healthy, local, ecologically sound New Hampshire food system with us. We wish you and your families the best as we move into the holiday season!

Yours in Good Health & Healthy Food,

Team NOFA-NH

Winter Book Study: A Precautionary Tale

We hope you will join NOFA-NH and Seacoast NH Permaculture this winter for a 5-part Zoom book discussion of A Precautionary Tale: How One Small Town Banned Pesticides, Preserved Its Food Heritage and Inspired a Movement by Philip Ackerman-Leist. Meetings will take place every other Thursday from January 5 to March 2. Register for the whole 5-week series for $10 (NOFA members) or $15 (non-members). Only six spots are available and will be filled on a first come first serve basis. Participants must purchase their own copy of the book. Learn more and sign up at www.nofanh.org/book-club.

A Future of Food Security for All w/ Special Guest Ira Wallace January 10th

The seven chapters of the Northeast Organic Farming Association have been working to develop food security programs and learning opportunities throughout our region. This winter each chapter will be implementing various workshops at our Winter Conferences that discuss topics to build self-resiliency, grow agricultural communities, develop systems for improved access, increase land access, and reduce climate decline. To kick off our Winter Conference season we have invited the NOFA/Mass Keynote Speaker Ira Wallace, of the Southern Exposure Seed Exchange, to share with us the importance of food security and how seed saving continues to play such an important role in feeding our communities. We hope you will join us for this free, virtual event on January 10 from 12 PM – 1 PM.

Registration will open soon. You can learn more here.

Food & Climate Panel: Carbon Market Pitfalls January 18th

Please save the date for an exciting online panel NOFA-NH is presenting in collaboration with Seacoast NH Permaculture. Join us on January 18, 2023 at 7 PM for an online panel discussion: Food and Climate: Carbon Market Pitfalls & Better Strategies for Regenerative Farming Practices. Panel speakers include Cat Buxton of Grow More, Waste Less, Caroline Gordon of Rural Vermont, Stephen Leslie of Cedar Mountain Farm & Cobb Hill Cheese, and Julie Davenson of the Regenerative Food Network, Southshire Meats, & NOFA-NH. This webinar will offer participants an opportunity to discuss methods to more fairly acknowledge farmers' contributions to land care through Payments for Ecosystem Services (PES). It will also highlight the drawbacks and vulnerabilities to cooptation that are contained in some of the proposed measures. Plan for a lively Q&A session!

To learn more and register, please visit www.nofanh.org/pes.

Carbon Offsets at COP27 Webinar Recording

On October 27th, The Indigenous Environmental Network and National Family Farm Coalition, along with 7 other partners, cohosted an illuminating webinar that explored the growth of carbon offset programs, the harm they cause, and real solutions to address the climate crisis. It clearly outlines the flaws in 'net zero' programs that allow polluters to 'compensate' for their pollution through investment in farms and forests. 'Carbon Offsets at COP27: A Poison Pill for the Planet, Farmers and Communities' is well worth hearing or watching, and a great resource to view in advance of our upcoming Food & Climate Panel on January 18th.

2023 Farm Bill – NOFA Priorities & Public Review

NOFA's Farm Bill Principles advocate for a Farm Bill that:

- Actively invests in and protects the integrity of organic and agroecological practices as a core solution to our climate and biological crises.
- Ensures fair treatment and just livelihoods for farmers and workers throughout the food and farming system.
- Invests in rural communities, increases fairness and resilience of local and regional supply chains and breaks up consolidation in agriculture.
- Centers racial justice across all programs and repairs past and ongoing racialized harm.
- Promotes food sovereignty for disadvantaged communities and ensures nutrition security for all.
- Eliminates the use of toxic substances on farmland and in our food system while supporting a just transition for farmers.

The House Agriculture Committee is seeking direct input from producers, stakeholders, and consumers on how various farm bill programs are working for them as an integral part of the review process of the 2018 Farm Bill and for preparation for the 2023 Farm Bill. You can submit your review here.

2022 Weekly Market Bulletin Organic Produce Prices

Each year, the NH Department of Agriculture, Markets and Food collects and summarizes retail produce prices from farm stands throughout New Hampshire. NOFA-NH & the NHDAMF are seeking price lists from organic farmers around the state. These prices will appear in the Weekly Market Bulletin newsletter, which is published by the NH Department of Agriculture, Markets and Food.

The summary includes price ranges for different crops from the various organic farm retail outlets. The weekly information is reviewed and used by producers throughout the state and region. This is completely anonymous. No names are tied to the price information in any way.

Find a sample price sheet here. You can submit your price sheet to marketbulletin@agr.nh.gov each Monday at noon to be included in the following Weekly Market Bulletin. If you have any questions, please contact Terri Sheridan at 603-271-3551, or email: marketbulletin@agr.nh.gov.

LTE: Support NH Farms Before They All Vanish

Gene Jonas, farmer and owner of Hungry Bear Farm in Wilton, NH and NOFA-NH Education & Policy Committee member, penned this letter to the editor, published on November 10th.

"Another farm here in the Monadnock region just went out of business. I've heard through the grapevine that another one lost access to the land they farmed. A third plans to cut production by 70% next year. If the New England Feeding New England Project (nefoodsystemplanners.org) is to succeed then we must develop more ways of producing the food we consume, growth through attrition is not the answer.."

Local Organic Food vs. the Climate Crisis

Why is small-scale, localized, organic growing and eating so crucial for our tumultuous times? Why are such practices key to a healthy, just, and climate-stable future? How can we encourage others to support this important work?

Here's an exceptionally insightful webinar from IPES-Food (the International Panel of Experts on Sustainable Food and A Growing Culture). It's titled 'BEYOND CARBON: Food systems, Climate and Greenwashing at COP27.' While it's directed towards journalists, it could be very helpful for anyone who'd like to better understand the deliberate shifts in language that are being used to try to shape people's grasp of climate change; the ecological impact of different kinds of food production and eating patterns; and the social power dynamics that distort taxpayer-funded farm subsidies, programs, and trade treaties.

Pair the above with the Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy (IATP's) four-part series of short podcasts on COP27 and you'll have an in-depth summary of current actions and narratives swirling around these vital concerns. Here's a link to the first episode of that IATP series.

Monadnock Food Co-Op Farm Fund: Applications Due February 1st!

The Monadnock Food Co-op Farm Fund program, in partnership with the Cheshire County Conservation District, is now accepting applications from local farmers. Currently, in its seventh year, the fund has supported sixteen farms in the Monadnock Region.

The Monadnock Food Co-op Farm Fund's mission is to support local farmers in increasing sustainable food production and wholesale sales to contribute to a thriving local farm economy. This grant supports several of the co-op's goals, including building a healthy, sustainable food system, supporting local farmers and producers, and contributing to a strong, sustainable, and improving local economy.

Interested farmers are invited to attend one of two Monadnock Food Co-op Farm Fund Zoom Informational Sessions on Wednesday, December 7th, 2022 at 6:00PM and Thursday, January 5th, 2023 at 6:00PM. Registration is required. Applications are due February 1, 2023! Learn more & apply.

The Impact of Organic Hydroponics and Possible Solutions

Jim Riddle of Organic Independents LLP and Blue Fruit Farm, and NOFA-NH member, penned the article "The End of Organic Farming (as we know it)" in response to the recent Appeals Court ruling to allow hydroponic operations to be certified organic:

"The fundamental concepts of organic farming have always been, "Feed the Soil, not the Plant," and "Healthy Soil leads to Healthy Crops, Healthy Animals, Healthy People, and a Healthy Planet." Now, those concepts have been turned on their head, with a recent Appeals Court ruling that you don't even need soil for growing terrestrial crops, in order to be certified organic in the United States.

Will the 9th Circuit Court's September 2022 ruling, which stated, "no part of the statute [Organic Foods Production Act] clearly precludes organic certification of crops grown hydroponically," mean the end of organic farming, as we know it? Maybe. Maybe not..."

Census & Survey: Two Ways to Share Your Experiences

Submit to the National Farm to Food Assistance Survey by Friday December 2, 2022! The purpose of this survey is to better understand the market channel that connects small-to mid-size local food producers and the food assistance/hunger relief sector. Connections between farmers and food assistance efforts come in many shapes and sizes. This survey is specifically interested in those where farmers are paid for their product, which people facing food insecurity then access for free or at a discounted price. November Recipe: Gingered Cranberry Sauce

One of the few fruits native to North America, cranberries have been used by Indigenous peoples of New England as food and medicine for generations.

This cranberry sauce is a fall classic with a spicy addition – and yes, you can get local ginger in NH! Check out Warner Public Market, Sweet Beet Market, or Benedikt Dairy's farm store to find some!

Ingredients:

12 ounces fresh cranberries
½ cup honey
½ cup apple cider
¼ cup golden raisins
Zest of 1 medium orange
1 tsp fresh grated ginger, or ½ tsp ground
½ tsp cinnamon
Pinch salt

Preparation:

Combine all ingredients into a medium saucepan. Cook over medium heat until cranberries pop and the sauce has thickened. Adjust sweetness to your liking!

Allow to cool and store covered in your refrigerator for up to 2 weeks. Delicious with poultry or as a topping for vanilla ice cream!
